The Beatles

In 1963 the Beatles began their astonishing breakthrough. Four boys from Liverpool suddenly emerged on the world. Beatlemania became a global "epidemic".

The Beatles became famous in England in October 1962, when their first single record, "Love Me Do" appeared. The famous four who recorded that song were: John Lennon, Paul McCartney, George Harrison and drummer Ringo Starr. This was the original line-up of the band.

Three years before this, when John Lennon was 19 and George Harrison was approaching his seventeenth birthday, the group was offered its first "big job" - playing at the famous Star Club in Hamburg. In those days there were five Beatles: Pete Best on drums, Lennon, McCartney, Harrison and the mysterious fifth Beatle, Stuart Sutcliffe.

The Beatles returned to England penniless and exhausted. Stuart Sutcliffe left the group and stayed in Germany, where he died a few months left. The Beatles began a series of lunchtime concerts at a Liverpool club. The lunchtime concerts were a great success.

During the sixties, it seemed that the Beatles were always in the headlines. They made successful records and interesting films. Beatlemania was the word used to describe the reaction of fans all over the world.
